The ECE faculty at NCU is highly skilled. During my time there, I developed a predilection towards digital and analog electronics. And with the help of the faculty, I was able to develop a strong grasp of it. I also dabbled in VLSI, for which the University provides a very conducive environment. This ultimately led me to bag a position at Intel Corporation, Ireland after graduation.

The faculty at The NorthCap University has guided me in taking crucial career decisions at the right time that paved my path to an amazing career. I was fortunate enough to be part of many curricular and extra-curricular activities that helped shape my overall personality as a professional.

The School of Management provides us with several certified activities and webinars to enhance our skills base. Also, the focus is not just on academics but also on providing equal importance to community service and the student's skill upgradation.

The NorthCap University offered me an ideal growth platform where I could express myself and identify my strengths and weaknesses before entering into the corporate world. Moreover, I was impressed by the lean hierarchical structure at NCU that made it easy for students to reach out to the faculty members. The university is tailoring its programs based on the demand of Industry 4.0, not only in terms of operations but also with respect to new ideas and thoughts.

My experience here so far has been splendid. It has been two years since I have joined NCU and I have learnt a lot, not just academically but in all other aspects of life and particularly career development. I got help at almost every step at NCU. I knew nothing about coding before I joined NCU but started liking it so much that I wrote code for 13 hours while doing an internship with Microsoft! It wasn't just technical skills though – NCU helped me develop a lot of necessary soft skills too.
